
Never miss a story. This is real media intelligence.

How Signal helped notonthehighstreet.com

Louise Winmill heads up the corporate communications team. It's her responsibility to track what is being said about the company at any given moment and to maintain, protect and promote the company's reputation.

The challenge

Louise needs to track what is being said about notonthehighstreet.com in the media continuously. She needs to see and understand what is happening in the wider industry to gauge consumer confidence, how their competitors are performing and what they are saying.

It was clear Louise needed a solution that gave her the flexibility to search and track unlimited news mentions, but also track broadcast and have the option to receive it in real-time.

"We need to have full media intelligence of the market place at any given moment. Both as a company but also what is happening in the wider world that may impact our business. We needed a solution which gave us the ability to track not just the right media publications, but also track whatever key term we needed and see the results instantly."

The solution

Many of the main suppliers in the media monitoring market did not have all the features or functionality she needed to identify and track all her news. They were either too costly, inflexible or did not provide real-time alerts – a key requirement.

Signal Monitor not only allowed her to identify her news – in print, online and broadcast – in real time, but also allowed her to track an unlimited number of terms at no extra cost, so she could be flexible to the company's needs.

"The area I value most is the ability to track whatever search term, whatever company, and the option to narrow down to a small group of publications they may be covered in or see who are talking about them. Signal is not just a media monitoring tool, but a media intelligence tool. This is what sets Signal apart."

The results

By using Signal Monitor, Louise knows she won't miss any news. She considers Signal Monitor a media intelligence solution, rather than just a media monitoring solution. It doesn't just keep her on top of the news she needs across a broad range of topics, but also aids efficiency – offering a daily news digest, allowing her to create clipping reports quickly within the platform or turn on real time alerts, to keep track of an evolving news story. With Signal Monitor, Louise can now react to news quickly and keep track of everything that might affect notonthehighstreet.com.

With a simple, intuitive platform, Louise can create and edit feeds directly in the platform, as well as creating reports when needed. And when there's an issue she needs resolving, she knows she can rely on the customer success team to support her every step of the way.

"I feel 100% confident we will never miss a mention of our business."

"I was impressed with the technology powering Signal. Machine learning enables me to get the news I need, when I need it, and there is no reliance on manual curation.... I am very excited for how Signal will develop and enhance their media intelligence platform, especially in analysis. I fully trust the AI technology behind Signal to provide the results I need".
